sincere principles, and unprejudicate understanding. Taylor.

UNPREJUDICED. adj. Free from prejudice; free from pre-possession; not pre-occupied by opinion; void of preconceived notions.

The meaning of them may be so plain, as that any unprejudiced and reasonable man may certainly understand them. Tilleyson.

Several, when they had informed themselves of our Saviour's history, and examined, with unprejudiced minds, the doctrines and manners of his disciples, were so struck, that they professed themselves of that sect. Addison.

UNPRELITICAL. Unfuitable to a prelate.
The archbishop of York, by such unprelitical, ignominious arguments, in plain terms advised him to pass that act. Claren.

UNPREMEDITATED. adj. Not prepared in the mind beforehand.

Ask me what question thou canst possible,
And I will answer unpremeditated. Shakespeare. Hen. VI.

He dictates to me dumbfiring; or inspires Easy my unpremeditated verse. Milton's Par. Lost.

The flow of speech make unpremeditated harangues, or converse readily in languages that they are but little acquaint-

UNPREPARED. adj.
1. Not fitted by previous measures.
Unpractis'd, unprepar'd, and still to seek. Milton.

To come unprepar'd before him, is an argument that we do not esteem God. Dunlop's Rules for Devotion.

Fields are full of eyes, and woods have ears;
For this the wife are ever on their guard,
For, unforeseen, they say, is unprepar'd. Dryden.

2. Not made fit for the dreadful moment of departure.
I would not kill thy unprepared spirit;
No; heavens forefend. Shakespeare. Othello.

My unprepar'd, and unrepenting breath,
Was snatch'd away by the swift hand of death. Reverend.

UNPREPAREDNESS. n. f. State of being unprepared.
I believe my innocency and unpreparedness to assert my rights and honour, make me the most guilty in their esteem; who would not so easily have declared a war against me, if I had first assaulted them. K. Charles.

UNPREPOSSESSED. Not prepossessed; not pre-occupied by notions.

The unprepossessed on the one hand, and the well-disposed on the other, are affected with a due fear of these things. Saunders.

It finds the mind naked and unprepossessed with any former notions, and so easily and insensibly gains upon the assent. Saunders.

UNPREPARED. adj.
1. Not prepped.
Have I my pillow left unprepp'd in Rome? Shakespeare.

In these soft shades, unprepp'd by human feet,
Thy happy Phoenix keeps his balmy seat. Tickell.

A pack of sermons, which wou'd press you down,
If unprevanted, to your time's grave. Shakespeare.

2. Not preceded by any thing.
Thy grace
Comes unprevanted, unimplo'd, unfought. Milton.

UNPRINCIPALLY. adj. Unfitable to a prince.
I could not have given my enemies greater advantages, than by so unprincipally an inconsistency. K. Charles.

UNPRINTED. adj. Not printed.
Defect it, till you have finished these that are yet unprinted. Pope.

UNPRINCIPLED. adj. Not settled in tenets or opinions.
I do not think my sister so to seek,
Or so unprincipled in virtue's book,
As that the single want of light and noise
Could stir the constant mood of her calm thoughts. Milton.

Others betake them to state affairs, with souls to unprin-ciple.

UNP

pled in virtue, and true generous breeding, that flattery, and court shifts, and tyrannous aphorisms appear to them the highest points of wisdom. Milton on Education.

UNPRISABLE. adj. Not valued; not of estimation.
A bawling vessel was he captain of,
For shallow draught and bulk unprisable. Shakespeare.

UNPROCLAIMED. adj. Not notified by a public declaration.

One man, assassin-like, had levy'd war.
War unproclaim'd. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xi.

UNPROFITABLE. adj. Useless; serving no purpose.
The church being eased of unprofitable labours, needless offices may the better be attended. Hooker.

Should he reason with unprofitable talk?
My son Onesimus I have begotten in my bonds; which in time past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee and me. Philomen 11.

They receive alimony sufficient, and yet no more than they can well digest; and withal sweat out the coarsest and unprofitablest juice. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

It is better to fall honourably, than to survive in an unprofitable and unglorious life. L'Estrange.

Then they who brothers better claim disown,
Defraud their clients, and to lucre fold,
Sit brooding on unprofitable gold.
With shame and sorrow fill'd.
For plotting an unprofitable crime. Dryden.

An ox that waits the coming blow,
Old and unprofitable to the plough.
With tears to tender. Dryden.

As any heart, but only her's, could move;
Trembling before her bolted doors he stood,
And there pour'd out th' unprofitable flood. Dryden.

UNPROFESSED. adj. Set free from confinement,
Several desires led parts away,
Water declin'd with earth, the air did fly;
Fire rose, and each from other but untidy;
Themelves unprofess'd were, and purify'd. Dryden.

UNPRIZED. adj. Not valued.
Not all the dukes of wat'rish Burgundy,
Can buy this unpriz'd, precious maid of me. Shakespeare.

UNPROFANE. adj. Not profane.
Unspoil'd shall be her arms, and unprofan'd
Her holy limbs with any human hand:
And in a marble tomb laid in her native land. Dryden.

UNPROFITABLENESS. n. f. Uselessness.
We are so persuaded of the unprofitableness of your science, that you can but leave us where you find us; but if you succeed, you increase the number of your party. Addison.

UNPROFITABLY. adv. Uselessly; without advantage.
I shou'd not now unprofitably spend Myself in words, or catch at empty hope,
By airy ways, for solid certainties. B. Johnson.

Our country's cause,
That drew our swords, now wrecks 'em from our hands,
And bids us not delight in Roman blood Unprofitably shed. Addison's Cat.

UNPROFITED. adj. Having no gain.
Be clamorous, and leap all civil bounds,
Rather than make unprofit'd return. Shakespeare.

UNPROFITICK. adj. Barren; not productive.
Great rains drown many insects, and render their eggs unprofitick, or destroy them. Hale.

UNPROMISING. adj. Giving no promise of excellence; having no appearance of value.
If he be naturally listless and dreaming, this unpromising disposition is none of the easiest to be dealt with. Locke.

An attempt as difficult and unpromising of success, as if he should make the chaff, to produce some new kinds of animals out of such feeble materials. Bentley.

UNPROVINCED. adj. Not uttered; not spoken.
Mad fit imperfect words, with childish trips,
Half-pronounc'd, slide through my infant lips. Milton.

UNPROPER. adj. Not peculiar.
Millions nightly lie in those unproper beds,
Which they dare swear peculiar. Shakespeare. Othello.

UNPROPERLY. adv. Contrarily to propriety; improperly.
I kneel before thee, and unproperly Shew duty as mistaken all the while Between the child and parent. Shakespeare's Coriolanus.

UNPROPTIOUS. adj. Not favourable; unpropitious.
'Twas when the dog-star's unpropitious ray Smote ev'ry brain, and wither'd ev'ry day, Sick was the sun. Pope.

UNPROPORTIONED. adj. Not suited to something else.
Give thy thoughts no tongue,
Nor any unproportion'd thought his act. Shakespeare.

UNPROPPED. adj. Not supported; not upheld.
He lives at random, carelessly diffus'd,
With languish'd head unprop'd,
As one past hope, abandon'd,
And by himself given over. Milton's Agonistes.

UNP

The fatal fang drove deep within his thigh,
And cut the nerves; the nerves no more sustain
The bulk; the bulk, unprop'd, falls headlong on the plain. Dryden.

UNPROPOSED. adj. Not proposed.
The means are unpropose'd. Dryden.

UNPROSPEROUSLY. adj. [unprosper, Lat.] Unfortunate; not profperous.

The winter had been very unprosperous and unsuccessful to the king. Clarendon.

Nought unprosperous shall thy ways attend,
Born with good omens, and with heav'n thy friend. Pope.

UNPROSPEROUSLY. adj. Unsuccessfully.
When a prince fights justly, and yet unprosperously, if he could see all those reasons for which God hath so ordered it, he would think it the most reasonable thing in the world. Taylor.

UNPROTECTED. adj. Not protected; not supported.
By weak experience, thy both did learn, that to forsake the God of heaven, is to fall into all such evils upon the face of the earth, as men, either destitute of grace divine, may commit, or unprotected from above, endure. Hooker.

UNPROVED. adj. Not evinced by arguments.
The land,
In antique times was savage wilderness,
Unpeop'd, unmanur'd, unprov'd, unprais'd. Spenser.

There I found a freshly unprov'd knight,
Whose many hands, imbr'd in guilty blood,
Had never been. Fairy Queen, b. i.

There is much of what should be demonstrated, left unprov'd by those chymical experiments. Boyle.

To UNPROV'D. v. a. To divest of resolution or qualifications.
I'll not expoliate with her, lest
Her beauty unprov'd my mind again. Shakespeare. Othello.

Properly inviting every sense,
With various arts to unprov'd my mind;
What but a Spartan spirit can sustain
The shock of such temptations? Southern.

UNPROV'D. adj.
1. Not secured or qualified by previous measures.
Where shall I find one that can steal well? O, for a fine thief of two and twenty, or thereabout; I am heinously unprov'd. Shakespeare. Hen. IV.

With his prepared sword he charges home
My unprov'd body, lanc'd my arm. Shakespeare.

Tears, for a stroke foreseen, afford relief;
But unprov'd for a sudden blow,
Like Niobe we marble grow,
And petrify with grief. Dryden.

2. Not furnished.
Those unprov'd of tackling and victual, are forced to sea. K. Charles.

The seditious had neither weapons, order, nor counsel; but being in all things unprov'd, were slain like beasts. Hayward.

Th' ambitious empress with her son is join'd,
And, in his brother's absence, has design'd
Th' unprov'd town to take. Dryden.

True zeal is not a solitary, melancholy grace, as if only fit to dwell in mean minds; such as are utterly unprov'd of all other natural, moral, or spiritual abilities. Spratt.

Courts are seldom unprov'd of persons under this character, on whom most employments naturally fall. Swift.

UNPROVOKED. adj. Not provoked.
The teeming earth, yet guileless of the plough,
And unprovok'd, did fruitful stores allow.
Let them forbear all open and secret methods of encouraging a rebellion to destructive, and so unprovoked. Addison.

UNPROV'D. adj. Not cut; not lopped.
The whole land is full of weeds;
Her fruit trees all unprov'd. Shakespeare.

UNPROV'D. adj. [unprov'd, Lat.] Not punished; suffered to continue in impunity.

Bind not one sin upon another, for in one thou shalt not be unpunished. Ecclesiast. viii. 8.

Divine justice will not let oppression go unpunished. L'Estr.

The vent'rous victor, march'd unpunish'd hence,
And seem'd to boast his fortunate offence. Dryden.

UNPURCHASED. adj. Unbought.
Unpurchas'd plenty our full tables loads,
And part of what they lent, return t'our gods. Denham.

UNPURGED. adj. Not purged.
Is Brutus sick?
And will he steal out of his wholesome bed,
To tempt the rheumy and unpurg'd air,
To add unto his sickness? Shakespeare. Julius Caesar.

Do it.
Or thy precedent services are all
But accidents unpurpos'd. Shakespeare. Ant. and Cleopatra.

UNPUBLICK. adj. Private; not generally known.
Virgins must be retired and unpublick for all freedom of society is a violence done to virginity, not in its natural, but in its moral capacity; that is, it does part of its severity and strictness, by publishing that person, whose work is religious;

UNQ

whose thoughts must dwell in heaven. Taylor.

UNPUBLISHED. adj.
1. Secret; unknown.
All blest secrets;
All you unpublish'd virtues of the earth, Shakespeare. Ke. Lear.

Spring with my tears.

All night the dreadful angel unpurs'd
Through heav'n's wide champain held his way. Milton.

UNPUTRIFIED. adj. Not corrupted by rottenness.
Meat and drink last longer unpurified, or unfower'd, in winter than in summer. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

No animal unpurified, being burnt, yields any alkaline salt, but putrified, yields a volatile alkali. Arbutnot.

UNQUALIFIED. adj. Not fit.
Till he has denuded himself of all these incumbrances,
he is utterly unqualified for these agonies. Decay of Piety.

All the writers against christianity, since the revolution, have been of the lowest rank in regard to literature, wit, and sense; and upon that account wholly unqualified to propagate heresies, unless among a people already abandoned. Sw.

Tories are more hated by the zealous whigs, than the very papists, and as much unqualified for the smallest offices. Sw.

To UNQUALIFY. v. a. To disqualify; to divest of qualification.

Arbitrary power so diminishes the basis of the female figure, as to unqualify a woman for an evening walk. Addison.

Our private misfortunes may unqualify us for charity; but reflect, whether they may not have been inflicted by God, as a just punishment of our former unmercifulness. Atterbury.

Deafness unqualifies me for all company. Swift.

UNQUALIFIABLE. adj. Such as cannot be impugned.
There arise unto the examination such satisfactory and unqualifiable reasons, as may confirm the causes generally received. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

To UNQUEEN. v. a. To divest of the dignity of queen.
Embaln me,
Then lay me forth; although unqueen'd, yet like
A queen, and daughter to a king, inter me. Shakespeare.

UNQUE'NCHABLE. adj. Unextinguishable.
Were present wildfires burning in water and unquenchable. Bac.

The people on their holidays,
Impetuous, insolent, unquenchable. Milton's Agonistes.

The criminal's penitence may have number'd him among the saints, when our unrepented uncharitableness may send us to unquenchable flames. Government of the Tongue.

Our love of God, our unquenchable desires to promote our well-grounded hopes to enjoy his glory, should take the chief place in our zeal. Spratt's Sermons.

UNQUENCHED. adj.
1. Not extinguished.
We have heats of dungs, and of lime unquenched. Bacon.

2. Not extinguishable.

moderate exercise in hot air, with unquenched thirst. Arbut.

UNQUENCHABLENESS. n. f. Unextinguishableness.
I was amazed to see the unquenchableness of this fire. Flakewill.

UNQUESTIONABLE. adj.
1. Indubitable; not to be doubted.
The duke's carriage was surely noble throughout; of unquestionable courage in himself, and rather fearful of fame than danger. Wotton.

One reason that mathematical demonstrations are uncon-troverted, is because interest hath no place in those unquestionable verities. Glanville's Scept.

There is an unquestionable magnificence in every part of Paradise Lost. Addison.

2. Such as cannot bear to be questioned without impatience;
this seems to be the meaning here.
What were his marks? —
—A lean cheek, which you have not; all unquestionable spirit, which you have not. Shakespeare.

UNQUESTIONABLY. adv. Indubitably; without doubt.
If the fathers were unquestionably of the household of faith, and all to do good to them; then certainly their children cannot be strangers in this household. Spratt.

St. Austin was unquestionably a man of parts, but interposing in a controversy where his talent did not lie, shewed his zeal against the antipodes to very ill purpose. Burnet.

UNQUESTIONED. adj.
1. Not doubted; passed without doubt.
